About Project RajPusht	Government of India through its flagship programme, Integrated Child Development Scheme (ICDS) has attempted to solve the problems of maternal and child malnutrition. The Integrated Child Development Services (ICDS) has been largely unsuccessful in reducing malnutrition and this is recognised across the national and state Governments. Specifically, its Take-Home Rations (THR) provided to 130 million beneficiaries are acknowledged by the government as being ineffective. Project RajPusht, is a joint initiative by Government of Rajasthan (GoR) and Children's Investment Fund Foundation (CIFF), UK for a period of 5 years to radically simplify and reform the ICDS to make it functional and effective in addressing maternal and child malnutrition. This will be achieved by replacing or topping-up THR with cash transfers, which is a more effective way to achieve better maternal and child nutrition outcomes; making positive change in knowledge, attitudes and practices around consumption of nutrient dense food by Pregnant and Lactating Women (PLW) and children <3 years; and creating multi-stakeholder consensus on cash transfers as a better way to deal with malnutrition. There will be amplification of Government of Rajasthan's efforts to tackle malnutrition by fostering collaboration between four distinct departments (Women and Child development, Planning, Information Technology (IT), and Finance) and introducing and testing pay-for-performance system for Front Line Workers (FLW) to achieve maternal and child nutrition outcomes and sustain it. This investment will not only demonstrate cash transfers in place of THR combined with enhancing the knowledge, practices and motivation of women to use the cash for buying high quality food; supportive influencer groups (mothers-in-law, husbands etc.) to help women do so; and quality supply side services (motivation of front line workers - AWWs, ANMs and ASHAs) but will also evaluate the efficacy of this integrated intervention in improving maternal and child nutrition to

	guide the scale up within country and enrich global knowledge on cash transfers. This investment will focus on 2 high-burden districts (Baran and Udaipur), demonstrating the model before scale-up. The project has three complementary components: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Component 1: Design and implement the Cash transfers to pregnant and lactating women, < 3 years and SAM children to facilitate cash transfers to about 1 million Pregnant and Lactating Women (PLW) and eligible children in two districts; establish a cash transfer prototype; and design, pilot and institutionalise a model of pay-for-performance for Front Line Workers. This component will entail three phases - The first phase will entail designing the end to end cash transfer mechanism for the state of Rajasthan and the second one will involve its implementation in the two high-burden districts. The third associated element is evaluation of the efficacy of the cash transfer system. • Component 2: Bolster behavior change and communication to tackle malnutrition will be to ensure that mothers spend the cash on nutritious food and to address deep rooted gender norms (e.g. women and girls eating last). This will entail locally relevant, precise and targeted messages on what to eat, when to eat, how much to eat and on IYCF practices to reach over 2 million target audience in the 2 districts; a change in knowledge, attitude and practices assessed and evaluation vis-à-vis nutritional outcomes; and a pool of about 8000 Frontline Workers trained on motivating mothers to adopt dietary diversity and IYCF practices. • Component 3: Evidence based advocacy and lesson learning for scale-up by setting Rajasthan as a champion in using cash transfers as an instrument for fastening reduction in maternal and child malnutrition, position cash transfers as effective tool to plug operational leakages across diverse development programmes of the central and state governments, and generate political buy-in across party lines to sustain and magnify the usage of this means for delivering high quality services to the citizen.
